

BEN-GURION MAY FORCE ISRAELIS TO BALLOTS AGAIN

AIR TRAGEDY VICTIM LEAVES ALL TO BROOKLYN YESHIVA

NEW YORK (JP)—A Brooklyn yeshiva is the beneficiary of an insurance policy of a Brooklyn rabbi killed on the El Al Airlines flight shot down over Bulgaria.

Rabbi Pincus Ingberman, 35, named Yeshiva Beth Joseph of Borough Park, Brooklyn, an institution which helped bring him to America, as the beneficiary of a policy he took out before he left the United States.

Three days before beginning his fatal trip, Rabbi Ingberman received a Ph. D. from Dropsie college. After that, a letter found in his home revealed, he wrote a letter to his brother in Israel, whom he hadn't seen for 20 years, and again put off the trip which, acquaintances told The POST, he was afraid to make. Apparently, however, he changed his mind, left the letter unmailed, and boarded the plane.

SOME AUTHORITIES feel that the policy he took out may not be collectable as it comes under an "act of war" clause, which makes policies unenforceable.

Another new development in the shooting is an opinion by an Israeli investigating commission that visited the scene of the crash that the passenger plane was shot down by fighter planes, and not by anti-aircraft fire, as the Bulgarian government has stated.

Members of the commission told the press in Greece that there is substantial evidence for their opinion in the types of shells found.

Bulgaria originally refused permission for the commission to enter its country, but later changed its mind and allowed a six-hour visit. When the Israelis reached the scene of the crash, most of the evidence and the bodies had been removed.

ANOTHER PASSENGER killed was Mrs. Sheinbaum, executive secretary of the Histadruth Ivrit of America, who was on her way to Israel as a delegate to the second World Hebrew Congress. She was raised and schooled in Israel, where her father is an official in the Ministry of Religion.

All U. S. passengers were from New York. Avram Mann was the master of ceremonies for several Yiddish programs on WEVD, New York. Mrs. Anne Hahn, flying to Israel to visit a sick brother, was the wife of Rabbi Hugo Hahn of Congregation Habonim, New York. Mrs. Anne Sacks, traveling with two daughters, was going to visit her husband, the owner of a textile mill in Tel Aviv. Mrs. Rachel Avram was on a European tour. Mrs. Ora Cohen was going to see her father, a Jerusalem lawyer. Mrs. Toby Safer was going to visit her son in Israel. And Mrs. Paul Katz was traveling with her daughter.

Citizens of Great Britain, Canada, Israel, France, and South Africa were also on the flight, as were five elderly Russians migrating to Israel, to join relatives there.

THE GOVERNMENTS of the United States, Great Britain and France have delivered strongly worded protests to the Bulgarian government and demanded investigation and compensation for their citizens. The Israel government has delivered an even stronger protest.

No acknowledgement of the receipt of the protests has as yet come from Bulgaria, although the government there has announced its willingness to pay for part of the damage, after it has been duly established. The Bulgarians have also appointed a three-man investigating commission to survey the wreck. Its findings have not been made known, however.

Following transfer of bodies, the crash victims will be buried in Israel, the government in Jerusalem has announced.

Crash of Plane Worries Mother

LOS ANGELES (JP)—Last week's crash involving an El Al airplane in Bulgaria caused great concern to Mrs. Anna Rifkin of nearby Venice as her son, Capt. Sam Lewis, piloted the ill-fated plane from New York to London.

When news of the crash was received, Mrs. Rifkin was worried. However, she was reassured of his safety when Capt. Lewis called stating he had not continued with the ship.

Doctor Says Hildy's Mother Knew of Ellises

BOSTON (JP)—Dr. Herman Sands, the physician who delivered Hildy McCoy, adopted daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Ellis, has declared the natural mother, Mrs. Marjorie McCoy Doherty, knew the couple who adopted her daughter were Jewish.

Dr. Sands, of Salem, Mass., said he told Mrs. Doherty, who was unwed at the time, that the Ellises were Jewish. He said the mother said she didn't care. Mrs. Doherty now seeks recovery of the child to turn her over to a Catholic adoption agency (JP, July 29, '55).

Meanwhile, Massachusetts legislators were considering a bill which would permit the Ellises to keep Hildy. It would exempt from the provisions of the adoption law children placed with families before 1954. Hildy has been with the Ellises since 1951. The present law bans interfaith adoptions.

Senate Unit To Hold Hearings On Church, State

WASHINGTON (JP) — A week of hearings on freedom of religion and separation of church and state, beginning Oct. 3, two weeks on freedom of speech and press, beginning Oct. 17, and four weeks on the right of assembly, beginning Nov. 14, are planned by a Senate subcommittee on constitutional rights.

The subcommittee, chaired by Thomas C. Hennings (D-Mo.) has been allotted $50,000 for its study. It will investigate the extent to which constitutional rights of people are being respected and enforced and, according to Senator Hennings, will survey the Bill of Rights "amendment by amendment and clause by clause."

Senator Hennings has also said that witnesses will be protected by statements in the subpoenas from irrelevant questions. They will be questioned only about the possible need for Congressional legislative action in the field under examination.

Court Voids Ban On Pork Sales

TEL AVIV (JP)—A Jewish butcher has succeeded in having the Supreme Court here void a Tel Aviv ordinance limiting the sale of pork and other non-kosher food products to non-Jewish storekeepers.

In his successful protests, the butcher, Samuel Mendelson, charged the Tel Aviv city ordinance was in violation of his basic rights and was virtually an act of "race discrimination."

May Goad Knesset To Change System

HAIFA (JP)—The bitterest, noisiest and most expensive elections in Israel's brief history may spur the adoption of the electoral reforms advocated by probable premier David Ben-Gurion.

The situation facing the Mapai leader is the one he has warned against many times—the electorate, by supporting Israel's numerous splinter groups has voted itself into a relatively leaderless state. Mapai, the strongest party, has less than one-third of the votes, 32 per cent, to be assured of only 39 seats in the third Knesset. This represents a loss of eight seats.

Emerging as the second strongest party in Israel, is Herut, an extreme rightist group, which polled 13 per cent, and will probably have 16 seats in the new Knesset. The General Zionists took a severe beating, dropping to 10.9 per cent of the vote, 5 per cent less than in 1951. It will have only 14 seats in the parliament.

MIZRACHI AND HAPOEL Hamizrachi received a vote of 9.5 per cent, giving them 12 deputies. Mapam received 7 per cent, entitling it to eight seats. Ahdut Ha'avoda captured 8 per cent, and will probably have 10 deputies. Agudat Yisrael and Poalei Agudat Yisrael received 5.14 per cent, with an estimated representation of six deputies. The progressives received 4.6 and the Communists 4.91, with each to have five deputies. The other five seats will be held by smaller splinter groups. Final results may change a seat or two.

The situation facing Ben-Gurion could have been avoided if Israel had taken his advice and set up Labor and Conservative blocs. He advocated constituency elections instead of nationwide balloting for party lists. This, he thought, would establish conditions for a two-party system, similar to that in the United States and Great Britain. Instead, Israel now is faced with a situation close to the French pattern.

Leaders of Israel's other parties balked at Ben-Gurion's suggestions on the ground that such a system would give Mapai an absolute majority to run the country as it wished. Now, far from Mapai being able to rule alone, it will take at least three parties, and possibly more to form any sort of government.

THE SITUATION may goad Ben-Gurion into putting all his energy and power behind shoving through a new election law. One report has it that he will form a coalition pledged to put through a new election law and then call another election.

Chances are that efforts in this direction will not get much support from Ben-Gurion's political opponents. However, he holds the big club over their heads in his power to force new election this year.

What another unrestricted election campaign would mean can readily be seen when the cost of the one just past is realized. Per voter, this very easily may have been the most expensive election in the history of democratic institutions. It ran to something like $11 a voter, 11 times the limit allowed British parties. (JP, July 22, '55).

The decision on a change in the electoral system may have been made by the time the new Knesset meets on Aug. 16. However, action is unlikely until after the High Holy Days, as the parliament will adjourn after electing a speaker and deputy speaker.

Golda Myerson To Become Tel Aviv Mayor

TEL AVIV (JP)—Israel's municipal elections, held concurrently with the third Knesset balloting, were highlighted by the clearcut victory of Mrs. Golda Myerson who polled 57,400 votes for Mapai as against 44,800 for the General Zionists in her bid for the Tel Aviv mayoralty.

Mrs. Myerson's victory was tempered, however, by the fact that a coalition in the city council will be necessary to pursue her program. The coalition, led by Mapai, consisting of the religious and progressive parties, would number 17 councillors out of a council of 31.

Turks Admit Pushing Talks For Arabs, Israel

ISTANBUL — Reports of the Turkish government's interest in mediating between Israel and the Arabs states have been confirmed by a foreign ministry spokesman here.

Newspapers close to the government reported the spokesman as admitting that the reports were true, but that so far no official approach to the parties involved in the dispute has been made.

One newspaper, MILLIYET, also reported that diplomatic circles in Lebanon, Iraq, and Jordan are for the move.

Ben Horin, Israeli charge d'affaires in Ankara, said that such an offer would be given careful consideration. He refused to comment on his government's position, however.

Israel Factory To Make Renaults

JERUSALEM—The Kaiser-Frazer plant in Israel will assemble Renault "Quatre Chevaux" automobiles, to be sold locally beginning some time in November. It has been learned from reliable sources.

The plant plans to sell jeeps and other vehicles to French Equatorial Africa in exchange for Renault parts.

It is hoped here that the Renault will be sold at a popular price.

... with organizations

• Seminar ... A group of 64 American Orthodox rabbis, religious educators and their wives, who are active in religious organizations, have gone to Israel to join rabbis from other countries in a summer seminar. The gathering will consider problems affecting Jewish religious life and customs that have arisen in connection with the creation of the State of Israel. The faculty will be headed by Chief Rabbi of Israel Isaac Herzog. The seminar is sponsored by the Jewish Agency for Palestine in cooperation with the Rabbinical Council of America. The rabbis' wives will join a special women's seminar sponsored jointly by the Jewish Agency for Palestine and the Mizrahi Women's Organization of America.

• Institute ... More than 125 college and high school students from cities throughout the United States will convene at Saratoga, Calif., August 9-21 for the eighth annual Camp Leadership Institute sponsored by the National Federation of Temple Youth. Theme of the institute is "I, the Prayer Book, Speak for Judaism," with seminar and informal study classes scheduled to cover the subject.

• Projects ... Three major research projects have been approved by the national commission of the B'nai B'rith Vocational Service Bureau. The bureau will seek to determine the trend of Jewish college enrollments; it will conduct a national sampling survey of boys and girls who were graduated from high school three years ago to determine what vocational and educational progress they have made toward reaching their goals. It will, in cooperation with the Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith, seek to determine by means of interviews with Jewish employers and Jewish employees in three selected fields what restrictions exist in regard to employment and advancement. The fields to be studied are college teaching, air transport and insurance.

• Movement ... The Anti-Defamation League of B'nai B'rith this week moved its national offices to 515 Madison Ave., New York, from its former location at 212 Fifth Ave. The move will not affect the League's metropolitan regional office which operates from 20 W. 40th St.

• Convention ... More than 150 teen-age delegates from three nations are scheduled to participate in the 11th International Convention of B'nai B'rith girls August 15-19 at Camp B'nai B'rith, Starlight, Pa. The delegates represent more than 14,500 members of BBG in 570

President's Unit Aids Government Fight Job Bias

LOS ANGELES (JP) — The President's Committee on Government Contracts, while primarily concerned with preventing racial and religious discrimination, has done much to improve government procurement methods, according to Dr. Jacob Seidenberg.

Seidenberg, executive director of the group, said the committee's main job is to convince government procurement officers of the need for enforcing the anti-discrimination clause in government contracts.

The clause requires that employers follow fair employment rules for workers on all goods produced for the government.

chapters throughout the United States and Canada. Major emphasis at this year's conclave will be on training youth for leadership in democracy and Judaism.

• Gathering ... The 18th annual Southeast Regional Convention of the Zionist Organization of America will be held September 2-5 at Miami Beach, Fla.

• Institute ... The third annual summer institute for Jewish educators on "Israel and Its Culture" begins Aug. 15 for five days at Los Angeles. The sessions, which will be conducted in Hebrew, are open to teachers, principals and religious leaders on the West Coast.

Nothing Could Stop Jerry From Realizing His Dream

By REY BALKIN

MIAMI BEACH

Jewish Post Correspondent

A 13-year-old bed-ridden boy had a long-time dream realized when his rabbi wrapped a tallit around his shoulder, and called upon the boy to read from the Torah.

Jerry Redlich was bar mitzva this week. The youth who has been confined to his bed with a skin disease for the past six years could not go to the synagogue—so the members of the synagogue came to him.

More than 40 guests, making up the home congregation, heard Jerry read his prayer of Thanksgiving. His parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Redlich, listened with joy as Jerry thanked them for the encouragement they had given him.

WHEN JERRY first told his parents he wanted to be bar mitzva, they knew nothing would stop him. For Jerry was determined to fully participate in life—even if it had to be from his bed.

Only last year he insisted on studying with his school class. A radio telephone was set up so that he could be in class even though he never left his bed. Jerry's home. The teacher found He was an "A" student, too.

So when Jerry insisted that he wanted to be bar mitzva on his 13th birthday, his parents sought the help of their rabbi.

IN RABBI Yaakov G. Rosenberg, spiritual leader of Beth David, Jerry found a friend. Even though the ceremony could not be held in the Beth David synagogue, the rabbi assured young Jerry that he would be at his bedside to put the tallit around him. He also promised Jerry that the ceremony would be just as significant as if it were held in the synagogue.

Arrangements were made for the Hebrew teacher to come to Jerry's apt and willing student. "JERRY SOUGHT learning," the teacher said, "and was an outstanding student. I'm as proud of him as any student I have ever had. He is a 'man' in the true sense of the word, for it takes courage to do what he is doing."

Jerry is just as respected by his classmates and friends. They admire him for his perseverance and refusal to give up. One classmate who attended the ceremony shared a laugh with Jerry.

"He's always doing the unusual," Jerry's friend said, "but this time he got the usual—fourteen pens as presents."

These children are old enough to hear about developments, both good and bad, in the Jewish community. If they don't learn about them through good pedagogic practices in the schools, they'll hear of them through angry snatches of conversations of their elders.

The one-sided view thus received often warps the outlook of the youngster, who is dismayed by the vehemence and the bitterness displayed by various sides of the issues being argued in the Jewish group.

Top educators for nine years now have made excellent use of The POST as the starting point for explanations of the elements and contentions in the Jewish community.

By this method of giving adequate and sympathetic explanations and background, the student is led to understand the complex life in the Jewish community and the controversies are therefore accepted in their proper perspective as a step in the development of a creative Jewish community.

Brooklyn Couple Win Fight for Son

Chicago Judge Rules For Foster Parents

CHICAGO (JP)—A Cook county court has allowed Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Gluckman of Brooklyn to keep their adopted 5-month-old son, despite the natural mother's wish that she get her child back. (JP, July 15, '55.)

Judge Otto Kerner made his decision after the dark-haired, brown-eyed natural mother, Tina Zouros, 22, testified that she wanted her son back so she could raise him "in the religion of my father" Greek Orthodoxy. In his ruling, the judge said that the mother "knew what she was doing" when she gave up her child for adoption by the Jewish couple.

The Illinois adoption laws were passed "for the very purpose of a case such as this," said the judge. "There is no doubt in my mind that the natural mother has changed her mind and is sorry for what she did, but at the time she signed the papers and gave her consent not only did she know what she was doing, but she did what she wanted to do at the time."

"Thank God for a kind judge," cried Gluckman, as Miss Zouros sobbed and a Greek Orthodox priest patted her head and spoke softly to her in Greek. Gluckman then ran to a phone to call his wife. Unable to reach her, he hurried to the airport to take a plane home.

Earlier, Miss Zouros told the court, through an interpreter, that she named her baby George Elidu after his father, whom she stopped seeing three months after she became pregnant. After that, unable to care for him, she gave her consent to his adoption.

"I thought the child was going to a Christian family and that's the reason I signed the papers," she testified.

London Paper Runs Bias Poll

LONDON (WNS)—An opinion poll of its readers on Jews and prejudice has been launched here by the DAILY HERALD, official organ of the British Labor Party.

Impetus to the survey was a reported 50,000 pound bequest to St. John's College of Cambridge with a stipulation that no allocations be made from the fund for fellowships to Jews and Negroes. Among the questions included in the newspaper's questionnaire are: "Do you like Jews, if not, why?" "Would you approve of your son or daughter marrying a Jew?" "If you are Jewish have you any prejudice against persons of other races or religions?"

The DAILY HERALD is one of the largest newspapers in England.

Dayan Hails New Destroyers Bought in Britain

TEL AVIV (JP)—The acquisition of two British destroyers (JP, July 29, '55) superior to anything the Arab states have at present make Israel's navy the second strongest in the Middle East, second only to Turkey's, General Moshe Dayan, chief of Israel's army, told a party given by the navy in Haifa.

"This is the third time," said General Dayan, "that Britain had given Israel's fighting forces a lift. A considerable part of the Israel army's foundation was laid when Britain trained Israel soldiers in the Jewish brigade and Jewish settlement police. . . . Another instance . . . is the army's artillery equipment. . . ."

General Dayan referred to the slogan "Eilat, Israel's southern gateway to Far Eastern waters" by saying that "for the moment nobody knows whether it exists, as we have not yet tried to run a ship flying the Israel flag to Eilat."

Eilat, he summarized, was "still a roof without foundations"; as it lacks harbor and warehouse facilities.

Meanwhile, an Israeli press report from London quotes an official spokesman of the Foreign Office there as saying that "Egypt will shortly be permitted to acquire in Britain two destroyers of the same type and fighting strength as those which were acquired recently by the Israelis."

Arabs Seek Action On Bandung Pact

WASHINGTON (WNS)—Implementation of the anti-Israel resolution adopted at the recent conference at Bandung, Indonesia, is being sought by the Arab League, it was disclosed in a broadcast from Jordan which said the league had prepared a note on measures which, it said, "would guarantee achieving the objectives" of the Bandung resolution.

The broadcast said the note suggests two possible courses of action—that the Arabs raise the Palestine question before the forthcoming session of the United Nations General Assembly, demanding the implementation of its resolutions, or else exert their efforts to implement the resolutions without raising the issue before the U.N.

Albert Would've Made Such a Fine Violinist

LOS ANGELES (JP)—Some incidents during the late Albert Einstein's youth were revealed here this week by his cousin, Mrs. Victoria Wolff, now a Hollywood foreign correspondent and novelist.

It was in 1918 that Mrs. Wolff recalls that the scientist's mother worried about Einstein. "He had just gotten divorced. And, if that weren't upsetting he had quit his job as assistant professor at the University of Zurich."

He had left the job and gone home to Heilbron to prove that his doctorate thesis was wrong, relates Mrs. Wolff. It was in disproving his original thesis that Einstein developed his general theory of relativity.

Mrs. Wolff remembers that her father hired Einstein as her tutor. "How I used to hate it. It was summer and all the other children were going swimming," she says.

"I was very impressed by him, but not as a teacher. He played the violin beautifully and sometimes he'd play for me. He had such sensitive fingers and with his flying dark hair, even then, it went in all directions—I couldn't understand when he didn't want to be a musician, instead of a dull mathematician."

After four weeks, Einstein told his cousin she shouldn't waste her time, that he "couldn't make her a mathematical genius."

Einstein murmured: "You be a good housewife and you'll be much happier."

Oldest Synagog In Germany To Be Rebuilt

WORMS, Germany—The German federal government, the government of the Rhineland-Palatinate, and the local administration here have agreed to pay part of the cost of reconstructing the oldest synagogue in Germany here.

Originally built in 1034, the synagogue burned down in 1938. It was completely destroyed during the war. Reconstruction, using mainly the stones of the former synagogue, now lying in a heap of rubble, is scheduled to begin within a few weeks.

Negotiations for having part of the cost of reconstruction paid by the government were made by the former president of the Worms Jewish community, 84-year-old Isidor Kiefer, now of New York. Kiefer has also started a fund-raising campaign for the rebuilding.

The planning and carrying out of the reconstruction will be under the direction of the director of the Worms municipal museum, who was able to save most of the valuable documents,

Change In Law Protects Jews On Holy Days

LOS ANGELES (JP)—An amendment to the California Election Code providing for absentee voting for those who cannot go to the polls on Election Day when it falls on a religious holiday has been signed into law by Governor Goodwin Knight.

The bill introduced into the legislature by Assemblyman Jesse Unruh of Los Angeles was proposed by the B'nai B'rith Anti-Defamation league's Pacific Southwest Regional office to prevent disenfranchisement of Jews during years when Election Day coincides with one of the Jewish High Holidays. The law will go into effect on September 7.

Prior to the enactment of the amendment, only persons absent from their election precinct or unable to go to the polls because of illness could vote by absentee ballot.

'Sandy' Bags Northwestern Tackle Spot Once Again

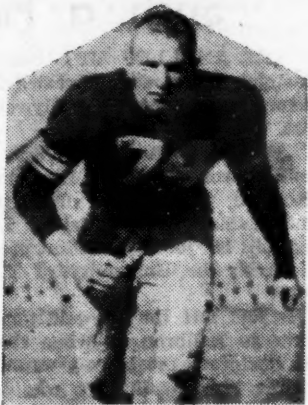

By GEORGE VASS

IT WON'T BE LONG before the terrified turf at Chicago's Soldiers Field will be trembling under the cleats of 22 assorted behemoths who will be joyfully shoving each other around for the possession of a small, elliptical air-filled bladder.

The approach of the annual football All-Star Game is as convenient an excuse as any for intruding the unseasonable topic of football. The very thought, during this hot summer, of such a fully-clad sport is enough to set one perspiring. But the advent of September's cooling winds will blow the moleskins and headguards back onto the brawny bodies of the large lads who cavort on the gridiron.

One of the biggest, brawniest and most frolicsome of these young giants is Sanford Sacks, a Jewish youngster who will have the pleasure or—if last season's record is any indication—the misfortune of captaining Northwestern university's football heroes.

"Sandy," as he is more commonly and affectionately known, is a 230-pound senior who, for three seasons, has most successfully hung a "no entrance" sign on the tackle spot on his side of Northwestern's otherwise mediocre line. Last season he averaged 56 minutes a game and made Big Ten honorable mention. He is the only Northwestern player in recent years to have played in all 27 of his school's games, during his first three years at school.

'SANDY' SACKS
Big, Rough and Ready

Sacks, 21, and 6 feet 3 inches, has displayed more than physical ability in his three years at Northwestern. Unlike so many football players, he understands the signals in his classrooms as well as those on the field. He has rolled up close to an "A" average in the college of commerce. His academic achievements gained him a spot on the All-Big Ten Scholastic Team.

"Sandy" was also an outstanding football star during his high school days. In his senior year he was elected co-captain of Cleveland Heights (O.) senior high school. The student body selected him as their most valuable athlete for 1951.

Bob Voights, former Northwestern football coach whose scalp was neatly removed by the alumni after a dismal 1954 season, has a pretty high opinion of Sacks: "Sandy is one of the fine linemen in football, a fine competitor, and a fine team man. The team enjoys playing with him—he's a swell kid." As Ethel Merman sings, "Who can ask for anything more?"

PHI EPSILON PHI fraternity's QUARTERLY for June reveals that PEP could put together some pretty fair basketball and football teams by calling on its membership on campuses throughout the nation.

LONG OVERLOOKED

CANADA HAS FIRST JEWISH SENATOR THROUGH NAMING OF DAVID CROLL

By ALLAN BERNFELD

Jewish Post Correspondent

OTTAWA (JP)—Canada's first Jewish senator, David Croll of Toronto, was named to his Upper House seat on July 28 by Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent.

The appointment ends years of speculation about why the Liberal government regularly ignored one of its best men when the time came for senatorial or cabinet appointments.

Senator Croll's appointment leaves his seat in the House of Commons vacant. The predominant Jewish riding of Toronto-

Spadina will have to choose a new representative to succeed the man who has been its MP since 1945.

Senator Croll has long had the label of the forgotten man on Parliament Hill. His religion and his political district (Toronto elects mostly opposition MPs) were apparently joint liabilities that kept him from a cabinet post on several occasions.

The Russian-born political veteran entered the House of Commons on a personal call from the late William Lyon Mackenzie King, architect of the Liberal party's unprecedented five-term political leadership in Canada.

A POLITICAL ENEMY, George Hees, also an MP and president of the national Progressive-Conservative Association, said in 1955 that Croll "has more ability than two-thirds of the ministers (in the Liberal

On the hardwood the PEP boys could marshal Don Wright, Irving Graif and Morton Cohen of McGill; Phil Bromberg, Northwestern center; Barry Storrick, Milton Winawer and Richard Skolnick of Washington and Lee.

Just to prove they're adept at other sports, the PEPs can boast of Howard Greenberg, North Carolina State tennis team captain; Melvin Deitch, North Carolina State golfer, and Joe Feldman, Rutgers pitcher, who is presently toiling in the minor leagues.

SPORTS SHORTS . . . A Jewish fencer, Allan Jay, last month became the first Englishman to win the International Challenge Chevalier Feyerick Trophy for epee. . . Dynamitin' Dick Goldstein, the Jewish boxer from Poland, reignited his fuse recently by winning a unanimous decision over Raul Perez in a Los Angeles bout. . . Two Chicago Jewish boys, Ronald Maurer and Harvey Brodey, have been selected as outstanding boy baseball players in the city's top juvenile league. . . Latest major league batting averages show Al Rosen slowly coming up, his average now at .253. Cal Abrams at .229 and Sid Gordon at .208 haven't made much progress and are seeing only limited action.

cabinet). He is infinitely more capable than some."

The statement from Hees was undoubtedly meant to stir up trouble for the Liberals among Jewish voters. But the new senator has a truly remarkable record of political achievement.

He was born in Russia and came to Canada at the age of 6. He worked at menial jobs to put himself through law school. After entering practice he was elected mayor of Windsor, Ontario, at the age of 30.

IN 1934 HE WAS elected to Ontario's Legislative Assembly (the provincial lower house). He was successively Minister of Welfare, Municipal Affairs, and Labor. In 1937 he resigned the labor portfolio because he wanted to support striking auto workers and Premier Hepburn claimed the unions were run from the United States.

Croll kept his legislature seat and won re-election as mayor of Windsor.

When war came in 1939, the 39-year-old mayor enlisted—as a private. He was received by the mayor and corporation of Windsor, England, with honors befitting a general when he went overseas with the Canadian Army. By 1945 the enlisted mayor had worked up to lieutenant-colonel. While in Germany he received a call from Mackenzie King to come home and run for Parliament in Toronto-Spadina.

NEVER QUITE MAKING the cabinet, he handled several tough committee jobs including a defense expenditures committee chairmanship when the "Currie Report" on army storekeeping methods threatened a scandal that might have upset the Liberal government in 1953.

At the same time, the senior of Canada's two Jewish MPs (the other is Louis Crestohl of Montreal) wasn't neglecting the Jewish community. In December 1952 over 1,000 Toronto Jews contributed $35,000 at a mammoth dinner. The money went to purchase and redeem 125 acres in the Negev west of Beersheba, and the land was dubbed "Nachlat David Croll" in honor of his Zionist activities.

As a senator, his duties on Parliament Hill will no longer be arduous. The Senate does little more than to review House of Commons legislation for technical errors. Opposition critics

Mrs. Weizmann To Visit Tito

TEL AVIV (JP)—Dr. Vera Weizmann, the widow of the late president of Israel, will visit Yugoslavia shortly.

She has received a letter from Marshall Tito in which he says "I will sincerely be pleased to meet you, and I hope you will kindly accept my invitation to be my WEIZMANN personal guest."

About a year ago, Dr. Weizmann visited Soviet Russia, where she met some of her husband's relatives. Among them was his sister-in-law, Dr. Masha Weizmann, a well-known Soviet physician who was among the "treacherous physicians" who were accused of a "plot against the leaders of Soviet Russia," but were later released and acquitted.

have called it an honor society for old Liberals, and have demanded that it be reformed or abolished. But the 13 recent appointments, including Croll's, indicated that the Liberals have heeded demands for fairer all-party representation and for some appointments from outside Parliament.

'Father' of Bar Ilan Sees Bright Future for School

By MARGO WOLFF

Jewish Post Correspondent
Teaching is a family tradition with the soft-spoken, mild-mannered dean of the new Bar Ilan university at Ramat Gan, Israel.

Pinkhos Churgin's father was the famous rabbi of Wolozin, Russia; one of his daughters, Betty, teaches musicology at Vassar; another daughter, Naomi, teaches English and history, and two of his brothers are well-known scholars.

When Pinkhos was bar mitzva, even then in Palestine, and no longer in Russia, he was already determined to become a scholar. Teaching in Israel had to wait a long time, however.

After he got his Ph.D. from Yale in 1922, Dr. Churgin devoted himself to Yeshiva university and the Mizrahi movement.

At Yeshiva university, he worked up to dean of the Teachers' institute and became one of the most popular professors of history in this country.

IN MIZRACHI, he launched his pet idea of an American-style university in Israel. Mizrahi accepted and adopted his project during the 1952 convention.

Bar Ilan is beginning this fall with a pilot enrollment of 150 students. This number, Dean Churgin believes, is quite sufficient, since the school does not yet have the facilities for a heavy enrollment.

In a few years, however, Dean Churgin believes, that "one or two years at Bar Ilan will become a must for religious U. S. youth."

The prospects for girls also look bright to him. Professor Churgin feels that special courses in home economics and training for dieticians will raise the percentage of coeds.

"Education for Jewish girls ago. Another is that "many has been badly neglected in the U. S.," says the dean.

COMMENTING ON THE fact that "most of our classes will be conducted in Hebrew," and English will be language of instruction in only exceptional cases, Dr. Churgin adds that the new American-style university will spur the Hebrew studies of many young American Jews.

One factor in the professor's feeling that Hebrew study is about to be stimulated is the fact that Hebrew was one of the basic requirements of such universities as Harvard centuries ago. Another is that "many Gentile scholars and universities in the U. S. encouraged our Bar Ilan university and promised all kinds of cooperation."

Among his future students, the dean expects to have some who are not Jewish, even some Arabs. "We do teach Arabic," says scholar Churgin with satisfaction. English and French are included in the four-year curriculums leading to B.A. and B.S. degrees.

"Bar Ilan university," says Churgin, "will become the long-expected intellectual bridge between U. S. and Israel Jewry."

"ERETZ YISRAEL consciousness will educate a new kind of U. S. Jewish leadership," and "Sept. 20, 1955, the opening day of Bar Ilan . . . will become a challenge for American-Israeli intellectual relationship."

Scholar Churgin is aware that "friction between the two different kinds" of Jewry are to be expected, but he is convinced that "a new era of cooperation will develop."

He himself is going to help this achievement by inviting prominent guest professors from American schools. Also, though Bar Ilan is now a liberal arts undergraduate school only, it may in a few years put in graduate work.

Your Name

Want to know what your name means? Address your question to Mr. Pearlroth, National Jewish Post, Box 1633, Indianapolis 6, Indiana.

By N. PEARLROTH

DEAR MR. PEARLROTH: My father's name was Sholcow, and he came from a small town in Russia, Machnowka. I would very much like to know the origin of his name.—Mrs. M. B. GAYNES, Chicago.

SHOLCOW is a family name of geographical origin. It is copied from the name of the village of Szolkow, which is situated about a mile from Wilkomir, Lithuania. Szolkow was situated on the old postal road to Poniewiez and was the seat of a distillery. In 1804 when your family name first came into being there was one Jewish family in Szolkow. It is reasonable to assume that it was your ancestor's.

DEAR MR. PEARLROTH: I would appreciate very much if you could tell me the history of my name which is Mandzuch. My father and his family came from Lodz, Poland.—BENJAMIN MANDZUCH, Akron, Ohio.

MANDZUCH is a very interesting Jewish family name. It is taken from the Polish name of a kitchen delicacy. The name of the delicacy was "mondryk." It consisted of cheese made from sweet milk. The cheese was cut into round disks and served fried in butter. What your family's relationship to this dish was is difficult to assess. Perhaps one of your ancestors was fond of the concoction and got his name by way of a well-meaning nickname. Or he may have been in the dairy or restaurant business.

DEAR MR. PEARLROTH: My name is Noel but in Europe (Lithuania) my family name was Nol. What is its origin?—MARTIN NOEL, Pensacola, Florida.

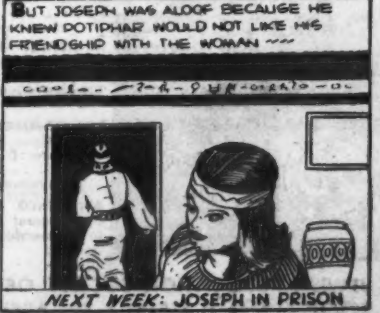

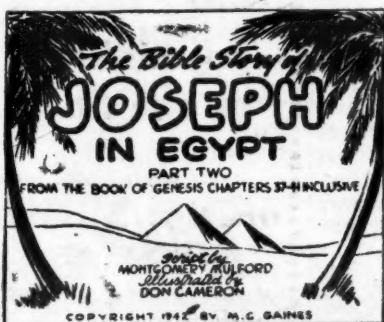

NOL is a name of geographical derivation. It is an abbreviation of the name of the town of Naliboki, situated about 100 miles from Vilna in Lithuania. The town was famous for its occurrence of rich iron ore which was processed in a great local foundry. The change of name to Noel is not too inappropriate. Noel is the last half of the Hebrew name Emanoel, mentioned in a French Christmas hymn. It is due to that hymn that the feast itself was named Noel in French.

kind's greatest forces, will be united by our efforts," concludes dean Churgin, adding that Bar Ilan university will strive in its academic program "to fulfill the dream of our old prophets."

ZOA's Power and Prestige Carry Weight In Israel

By CARL ALPERT

HAIFA—The name of the Zionist Organization of America (ZOA) appears in print fairly often these days in Israel, and the influence of the organization is once again being felt, indirectly, as a reflection of the purposefulness and direction of the American body. The ZOA House in Tel Aviv has, despite all criticism, turned out to be so successful that the Labor Zionists have been compelled to imitate with an American House of their own, Kfar Silver, the new agricultural school in the south. will be a major contribution to the education of the youth. Policy statements by ZOA leaders bearing on Israel affairs command attention here because they are firm, unequivocal and pointed. I am not surprised to hear that there has been a corresponding upturn in membership and interest within ZOA ranks.

Surprisingly, one of ZOA's more important contributions to Israel, while it has drawn widespread comment here, seems to have gone almost unnoticed in the United States. This is the growth and expansion of the American Israel Chamber of Commerce. Unless I am seriously mistaken, this body first came into existence as the result of the initiative of ZOA leaders, businessmen who were peculiarly conscious of the need for strengthening Israel's economy. Encouragement of private investment and industrial expansion would take place only when an atmosphere of confidence had been created, and many of the unfounded fears and suspicions of overseas friends of Israel dissipated.

THE CHAMBER organized slowly but well, and not long ago was the senior member at a Tel Aviv conference of similar Israel Chambers of Commerce from eleven nations. A number of Americans were in attendance among them such ZOA people as Leon Kay of Detroit and Jack Verdi of San Francisco, as well as Nathan Strauss III, president of the Chamber,

IT'S THE TRUTH!

By SAMUEL DEUTSCH
(Copyright, 1955, by Samuel Deutsch)

IT IS estimated that only 5 per cent of the world's Jewish population is occupied in agriculture!

A PRESIDENT of Yale once had a rabbi as his teacher! When Yale college was first founded, Ezra Stiles, its president, took up the study of Hebrew as that was one of the qualifications for the job. His instructor was a rabbi from Newport, R. I.!

THERE ARE no more than 150 words in the entire Pentateuch which are used only once without the same words being repeated anywhere else in any of the Biblical books!

THE FIRST city in which Jews settled in Australia was Sydney, in 1817, when a community of 20 Jews was formed there!

who was introduced to such matters via the ZOA Economic Department a few years ago.

If it has been felt that the Chamber would profit from non-identification with any particular organization, I regard it as also to the credit of the ZOA that it has been willing to forego credit—for the good of the cause.

ONE OF THE LATEST developments in this area, which came prominently to the fore during the international conference in Tel Aviv, was the so-called Verdi Plan or Private Point Four Program. The San Francisco Zionist has for several years been carrying on a stubborn one-man campaign to promote the mobilization of the know-how, experience and talents of American business and industrial leaders in behalf of Israel firms which frequently flounder for lack of experience or able advice.

Verdi talked bluntly to the conference, and his words were quoted in many papers. The American businessman, he said, is seldom approached for the help he can best offer. "You ask him for contributions; you ask him to buy bonds; you ask him to buy a Zionist shekel—but his most valuable potential aid—his experience and know-how—have been neglected."

HIS WORDS set the keynote for the entire conference, and before adjournment the Verdi plan was officially adopted, and the American Israel Chamber charged with its adoption. Now much depends on the implementation. On the one hand, a survey should be made of Israel business and industrial firms to determine the nature of their problems: processing, packaging, merchandising, etc., and a parallel survey made of a selected list of American Jewish businessmen to ascertain the degree of their willingness to co-operate. The coordinating agency will then have the task of matching up the needs with the know-how resources available. If executed on the scale conceived by Verdi, this project can become a massive program of economic aid, marshalling the best of American skills and talents for Israel.

I don't know if the officials of the Chamber of Commerce have the vision to see this thing in its true perspective, but if there is any faltering, the ZOA should be ready to add the weight of its prestige and power in behalf of the program.

Israelis Want Tough, Better Government

by M. Z. FRANK

These lines are typed on Thursday, July 28, when the first reports of the results of the elections in Israel are in.

As I see it, it is a vote for a tough policy abroad and for a policy of good administration and high productivity at home. To show the former, the citizens increased the strength of the Herut and the Ahdut Ha'avodah. To show the latter, they decreased the strength of Mapai and the General Zionists, both of which have been guilty of partisanship, patronage, inefficiency and monopolistic practices.

Some months ago Ben-Gurion said to his army: "It is not what the Gentiles say that is important; it is what the Jews do." This is not the philosophy of the whole party of Mapai, of which Ben-Gurion is leader; it is certainly not the standpoint of Moshe Sharett, who is No. 2 leader of Mapai.

We may assume that at least half of the 32 per cent of the votes which went to Mapai endorsed that standpoint; that at least two-thirds of the 15 per cent of the votes which went to the Religious Front are militant-minded; that all of the 8 per cent that went to Ahdut Ha'avodah and all of the 14 per cent that went to Herut go further than Ben-Gurion. We may also assume that half of the votes that went to the General Zionists (11 per cent) are so minded. This gives us a majority of votes in Israel against relying on Brownell's speeches for the country's security.

Mapai is the party of labor and socialism; the general Zionists are the party of private initiative and capitalism. Mapai has taken credit for grandiose plans for the expansion of agriculture and industry; the General Zionists have taken credit for the liberalization of the economic policy, the relaxation of control and the increased comforts.

But the citizen knows that the execution of the plans has been too costly in money; that the best brains of the country and of the Jews from abroad who are anxious to serve Israel have not been utilized adequately; that men and women are appointed to responsible positions not on the basis of their qualifications but on the basis of their loyalty to the party; that millions of dollars' worth of machinery brought into the country lie idle; that many of the blueprints are still blueprints.

HE ALSO KNOWS that the General Zionists are just as bad as Mapai; that it is just as guilty of monopolistic practices; that private industry in Israel is no less afraid of competition than is Histadrut industry; that it is cartelized and unproductive; that the General Zionists have been more concerned with getting jobs for their own people in the government and getting special privileges for their private businesses as have been Mapai and the Histadrut. Moreover, the General Zionists haven't even any plans to offer as alternatives to the plans worked out by Mapai. All they have is slogans and the dependence on the non-existent strength of their American allies in the ZOA.

Three years ago, when the General Zionists in Israel entertained the government coalition, Peretz Bernstein and Emanuel Neumann should have gotten together to work out a blueprint for Israel's economic policy and the G.Z. in Israel and the ZOA in America should have worked together towards its implementation insofar as it was practicable and towards its popularization. They might have done it at any time within the past three years. They did not. Now they are paying for it.

British Prepared For Israel Loss

TEL AVIV (JP) — A British request to the Italian government "to kindly prepare many barracks tents, and refugee villages, which will be needed for the Jews of Palestine a few days after the invasion by the Arab armies . . ." was disclosed by Israeli Galili, former chief of the Hagana, at a public meeting recently.

The request was part of a letter written by the last British high commissioner of Palestine during the last few days before the British withdrawal and was among other letters found by Hagana fighters. It was addressed to the Italian government, which was asked "to consider its contents as urgent as possible."

In explaining the request, the letter says: "There is no doubt that the Palestinian Jews will be forced to evacuate the country, and a large number of them may appear on the shores of Italy."

No copy of a reply, if a reply was made, has been found.

They Say

Yigal Mossenson, a judge at the Miss Israel contest, relating why he had turned down an invitation to act as judge at the first contest five years ago:

"I was a simple farmer then. I said that if they wanted me to judge cows I could do so, because that was a topic I knew something about."

Zvi Zinder, director of the Voice of Israel:

"The only thing that can cross the border without causing an incident is an Arabic broadcast."

Yehia Hawash, columnist for FALASTIN, a daily in the Jordan section of Jerusalem:

"The Jews have made no promise that they have not implemented. They said that they would drain the Huleh swamps—and the swamps are dry. . . . They said that they would carry water from the Jordan and the Yarkon to the Negev — and the water is now flowing to the Negev. The Arabs know only how to protest. We proclaimed we would oppose these actions by force but in the result the Jews got what they wanted and the Arabs nothing."

Dzigan and Shumacher, world famous Israeli Yiddish comedy team, commenting on the great demand for their services at the rallies of the various Israeli political parties during the recent election campaign, at 500 pounds a stint:

"I don't know what I am

Voice of America Beams Service To Hungary

NEW YORK (JP)—A confirmation service dealing with the American Jewish Tercentenary is being beamed into Hungary over the Voice of America.

The service was first presented at Temple Israel, Lawrence, N. Y., under the supervision of Rabbi Judah Kahn.

A guest at the service, the non-Jewish director of the Hungarian Voice of America operation, was so impressed that he requested Rabbi Kahn's permission to make the service into five broadcasts. The broadcasts are the ones now being beamed into Hungary.

Somehow comes August, and with it certain signs to remind us that autumn can't be far off, and the days just fly. Garden produce ripens faster than ever and I begin to plan for pickling, preserving and canning. Meanwhile, meals must be made and the family kept comfortable.

A friend dropped in the other day with a load of surplus home-grown leaf lettuce. Now, we do enjoy salads at the Lieber house, but there really is a limit to the amount of green stuff a family can consume. So I delighted the balabos with a dish his mother used to make. She called it "shalata." It's really steamed lettuce with a sweet and sour sauce. Try it using the tougher outer leaves of any salad greens. Or for that matter for beet greens, Chinese cabbage, Swiss chard or any other garden greens.

I even enjoy the more bitter greens such as mustard greens or chicory. You may have to search around for these vegetables, but they are worth looking for, both for their unusual flavor and for their excellent vitamin content. After washing the leaves, place them in a tightly covered saucepan with just enough water to prevent sticking. Cook until tender, then serve with vinegar and brown sugar to taste. A maichol.

SALAD RING

1 cup cottage cheese
½ cup mayonaise or salad dressing
½ cup sour cream
1 small can diced or shoe string beets
½ cup lemon juice or ¼ cup vinegar
2 packages lemon gelatine
salt, pepper and onion juice to taste sliced hard-cooked eggs and sliced cucumber for garnish

Dissolve two packages of gelatine in boiling water. Cool. Then place half the quantity in a separate bowl. Stir in juice from the canned beets and half the lemon juice. Set in refrigerator to thicken. In another bowl stir the sour cream and dressing into the dissolved dissolved gelatine. Add lemon juice and seasoning. Cool in refrigerator. When the white portion is thick, but not set, stir in cottage cheese and whip the entire mixture with a rotary beater until light and fluffy. Grease a ring mold, using salad oil. Pour in white salad mixture. Refrigerate until set. Add beets to the red mixture, season with onion juice and salt and pepper. When the first layer has set, pour in the red layer. Chill the entire mold. Turn out very carefully on a bed of salad greens. Garnish with cucumber and egg slices. Serve with or without sour cream dressing made by diluting mayonaise half and half with smetana. Serves 6.

LEFTOVER CHICKEN ALMONDINE

2 cups diced or minced chicken (canned kosher boned chicken may be used)
3 tbsps chicken fat
½ cup blanched almonds
1 package thawed frozen peas and carrots or 1½ cup leftover vegetables
2 cups cooked rice
½ cup mayonaise

Heat the schmaltz in a skillet. Lower flame and add the almonds, stirring to prevent scorching. When nuts are brown, remove from the fire and chop. Cool, then add to chicken. Cook and cool vegetables and blend into all the other ingredients. Pack into a bowl or mold. Chill thoroughly. Unmold on lettuce. Garnish with a few whole almonds, slices of canned pineapple, or ripe olives. Very pretty for company. Serves 4 to 6.

EASY FISH CASSEROLE

2 tbsps butter
½ cup diced celery
½ cup diced onion
3 cups cooked rice
1 pint jar "fish balls" or "fishlets," drained
½ cup of the drained-off juice
1 can condensed cream of mushroom soup
1 cup cooked mixed vegetables
Saute onion and celery in melted butter until tender. Add rice. Mix mushroom soup and fish juice. Add to mixture. Place half of this in a greased casserole. On top of this place the fish and then the vegetables. Pour in the rest of the mixture. Bake in a hot oven (400 degrees) 20 minutes. If desired, you may top with American style cheese slices in a design, and return to the oven for a few minutes until the cheese is melted. Serves 4 to 5.

A Word To The Wives

Try a chilled mixed fruit compote, made with less sugar than usual and topped with sour cream as a starter for a one dish meal. This is the time for those wonderful fresh fruit salads. Cheese shredded into the dressing gives them a special taam.

And if the day is cool, or you want a fine special dessert, try making an open race pie of a variety of fresh fruits. Place the fruit slices in concentric circles, being sure to have color contrast for the rows. For example, peaches, then cherries, then apples, then plums. Your reputation will be made.

WOMEN'S VIEWPOINT By HELEN COHEN

It Sounds Pretty Good In Merrie England

Been some time since I noted possible trends in British Jewry as seen in the pages of The JEWISH CHRONICLE of London.

I might mention that I feel a closer kinship to that publication since its recent clash with those who disapproved of its handling of the subject of the mikvas, which coincided by chance with a similar discussion in this corner. At any rate I have not one, but three different items from the July 22 issue for you.

First we notice that there is a Jewish Holiday Home for Mothers and Babies at Lymm, Cheshire (wherever that may be. It's listed under Manchester and is described in the article as the "only Jewish Home of its kind in the North.")

Sounds like the only Jewish home of its kind anywhere. It provides holidays for tired mothers with their babies (make way, I'll be right over) and convalescence for children of school age after childhood ailments.

INCIDENTALLY, the Home is in a "precarious financial condition" (needs money) and the Women's B'nai B'rith of Lymm is listed as having helped, so perhaps some of our chapters in America would be interested in the cause.

Next we find an advertisement by a business establishment called Young's Dress Hire of Wardour Street. The ad proclaims that "These days the well-dressed woman HIRES her evening dresses," which means, in America, that she rents them instead of buying. I don't believe this practice has become very widespread over here, although there appears little reason why it shouldn't. There is a great deal of "hiring" in this country of men's evening clothes as well as masquerade costumes and caps and gowns.

And the argument used by Young's of Wardour Street is equally convincing over here. We read, "What's the point of spending a fortune on buying an evening dress that gets well-known after two or three wears. . . ." Young's supply all accessories also — gloves, handbags, shoes, stoles, even jewelry—which should guarantee a well-turned out appearance for almost any female.

Well, I guess our ladies are still too proud and money here still more plentiful than across the sea.

AND FINALLY we look into the subject of vacations.

The British equivalent of Miami Beach appears to be the English seaside resort of Bournemouth. According to CHRONICLE writer Barbara Scott, it boasts the "greatest number of first-class Jewish hotels" and houses "Jewish people from every corner of England." Writer Scott explains (and I pass it on to you with unhappy reluctance) that its promenade is often called "mink mile."

Miss Scott (say, how did she come by that name) goes on to say:

"The two main topics of conversation are how good, or bad, the food was and how many shidduchs are likely to have been made by the end of the week. For it is a well-known fact that a boy and a girl, indifferent to each other in London, Manchester, Leeds, or Glasgow, are much more likely to fall in love under the warm sun and coloured lights of Bournemouth—possibly with the surreptitious aid of interested guests at the hotel and abetted by ever-hopeful parents."

And that ends our little visit with British Jewry.

MUSIC

FINE 'ANTHOLOGY OF JEWISH MUSIC' IS PRICELESS RECORD OF HERITAGE

By JOSEPH GALE

The notation of Jewish music is much a thing of the present, since only within the last century have composers of Sabbath and religious music begun to set their compositions on paper. Within the last two decades or so, musicologists have seen with alarm that the East European era, a period which produced most of what we know as Jewish music, was in danger of permanent eclipse.

The rabbis and cantors who created this great body of music either knew little about writing notes or could not conceive the music they made as being of timeless importance. It had for centuries been transmitted vocally from one generation to another, and as each developed its own contribution, grew into one of the most colorful literatures of any religion in the world.

The Ashkenazi saga began to fade in the twenties, and abruptly closed at the growth of Communism and the advent of Hitler. Cultural development stumbled into a nightmare sleep, and the immigrants who alone knew the music of their fathers grew old.

EFFORTS HAVE since been made to preserve the time-honored melodies and patterns from extinction. The latest is a splendid book by Chemjo Vinaver, first in a proposed series, called "Anthology of Jewish Music" (Edw. B. Marks Music Corp., 292 pp., $10).

Produced under a grant from the Jewish Agency, Vinaver's outsize volume (9½ x 12) is composed of 103 musical examples, carefully annotated and arranged with meticulous accuracy as to phrasing and pronunciation. It represents years of labor in archives and in the company of oldsters who hummed and sang for Vinaver the melodies they remembered from their childhood.

Such a heritage looks unimpressive on paper, but is priceless, not simply because of musical content, but in the historical association and personalities behind it. Who, for instance, has heard of Reb Moshe-Noah of Lodz? His "Sh'chuloh Achuloh," to a poem by the 11th Century Solomon ibn Gabirol, is published here for the first time. Another first is "Ato Noseyn Yod," by Pinchas Minkowsky, chazan of the Odessa Synagogue and one of the most famous cantors of his day. Minkowsky, who died in 1924, left a large library of original compositions.

The reproduction by Vinaver is from the manuscript which reposes in Hebrew University, Jerusalem. If not for Vinaver or another dedicated musicologist, might not such a recitative and hundreds like it lay forgotten in vaults?

IN "HYMNS for the Sabbath Table," there is a version of "Sholom Aleychem" sung to the author by Mrs. Tessie Verlinsky of New York, who remembered it as sung by her father Rabbi Joseph Verlinsky in Bagirod, Poland. "Azameyr Bish'vachin," with words by the 16th Century Rabbi Isaac Luria, was picked up by Vinaver in Berlin, in 1928, from a melody attributed to Rabbi Nachman of Bratslav, great-grandson of the Baal Shem Tov. "M'nuchoh V'simchoh," sung by members of the Cohen-Danciger family of New York, heard it from their parents, Reb Yakov Yom Tov Lipman Ha Cohen and Rachel Zisla Rasha.

And in the section devoted to Chassidic Nigunim, gladness leaps from the printed page. There are no formal words, but "da da da dam dam," or "yam bam bam," or "oi oi oi yo yo," or "ba ba ba bay bay." In direct contrast is Arnold Schoenberg's Psalm 130 (Op. 50b), written expressly for the anthology, after "Shir Hamaalos Mimaamakim," an ancient Chassidic recitative heard by Vinaver in Poland, in 1910.

The varieties and treasures are many, and Vinaver's book is very much for the layman. Lacking a piano, anyone with a fine ear can pick up most of the songs in this timeless agenda and make them live again. You will surely hope that the road ahead for Vinaver in the execution of future volumes is as easy and uncomplicated as adequate funds and widespread interest can make it.

BOOKS

AID IN FORMING A JEWISH LIBRARY AVAILABLE THROUGH B'NAI B'RITH

AN ANNOTATED LIST of books designed to help persons desiring to form a basic American Jewish library has just been issued by B'nai B'rith.

Compiled by Allen Lesser, B'nai B'rith director of public relations, the six-page mimeographed bibliography lists 74 books which cover almost all phases of Jewish participation in the discovery and development of America. Copies are available without charge on request by writing to the B'nai B'rith Department of Public Relations, 1701 K Street, N. W., Washington 6, D. C.

Among the books are biographies of Jacob Schiff, David Lubin, Haym Salomon, Solomon Schechter, Judah P. Benjamin, Albert Einstein, Lillian Wald, Aaron Lopez, Henrietta Szold and Julius Rosenwald; historical works by Anita Lebeson, Lee M. Friedman, Bertram W. Korn, Solomon R. Kagan, Miriam K. Freund; and fiction by Abraham Cahan, Edna Ferber, Fannie Hurst, Meyer Levin, and others.

THE JEWISH Theological Seminary of America's library in New York has received two gifts which are of significant importance in the field of American Jewish history.

Benjamin Lazrus, Manhattan, president of the Benrus Watch co., presented the library with a bound set of HATZOFE BE-ERETZ HA-HADASHA, the first all-Hebrew newspaper published in the United States.

The second volume, gift of Henry Schechter, Brooklyn, a nephew of Dr. Solomon Schechter, seminary president from 1902 until 1915, is a liturgical volume for fast days, "Seder Arba To'aniyyot," printed in Hebrew in Amsterdam in 1658. This book bears evidence of having been used by a Jew in Barbados in 1659. Later it was brought to America and became the property of Samuel Nephtal, gave the book to her grandson, Judah Pinto, a member of the Jewish family which figured prominently in the American Revolution.

The newspaper, HATZOFE BE-ERETZ HA-HADASHA, began publication on July 11, 1871. An eight-page paper, it sold for 10c a copy and contained two sections. The first was made up of editorials and information on Jewish life throughout the world; the second was devoted to scholarly and literary expression. The latter section demonstrates the editor's determination to help immigrants in their adjustment to their new surroundings, with such articles as "The History of George Washington" and "Recent Developments in Electricity and Astronomy." No complete set of the newspaper has survived to the present day.

ABOUT THREE MONTHS ago there occurred the publication of a book which has unaccountably received a minimum of publicity commensurate with its worth. It is the Septuagint Bible (Falcon's Wing Press $6.50), in the translation of Charles Thomson, secretary of the Continental Congress, as edited, revised and enlarged by C. A. Muses.

The Septuagint (meaning seventy, and referring to the approximate number of traditional translators) is the only version of the Old Testament dating from the Third Century before the Common Era, being then begun to be translated from Hebrew and later Aramaic originals that were already in those early times the oldest original manuscripts of the Bible in existence. These ancient writings were lost, but not before they had been translated into Greek during the reign of Ptolemy II.

It is the translation into English of this Greek version that occupied the last 20 years of Thomson's life, and until now had never been made available to the public. Thomson's massive scholarship, unaided by the research and library resources available today, and Muses' reverential and painstaking editing, appear to have much of the power of the King James version, together with much of the clarity of the recent Standard Revised version.

A thorough discussion of the Septuagint is, of course, not possible in this limited space, but from my vantage point, it seemed important to bring this edition to your notice. Since every home should have in it a well-read copy of the Old Testament, you would do well to add the Septuagint Bible to your list of prospective bookstore purchases.

Egypt to Build Jet Airplanes

TEL AVIV (JP)—Egypt will produce German-type jet planes at a factory which has been constructed by German contractors in the vicinity of Cairo.

German engineers and former Nazi Luftwaffe officers, now working for the Egyptians, have persuaded the latter that the new German-type rocket plane "is the fastest and most suitable air weapon of our time."

Foreign observers feel that the decision was part of a "general trend prevailing among the Egyptian rulers who want to be liberated from British and American supply sources."

THE EDITOR'S CHAIR

Here's a follow-up on our editorial on the talk that Dr. Louis Finkelstein delivered at the recent convention of the Rabbinical Assembly of America.

Not all the response to that editorial was pleasant. One rabbi cancelled his subscription, and another wrote in that he had changed his mind about a testimonial he had written about The POST seven years ago.

DEAR MR. COHEN:

I was happy to read your editorial on Dr. Finkelstein's talk. I am grateful to you for having encouraged me to go in and listen to him instead of sitting pleasantly in the air-conditioned lounge with you.

I am enclosing a bulletin which includes my reaction to Dr. Finkelstein's talk. It appeared two weeks ago.

Sincerely yours,

Rabbi BERNARD S. RASKAS.

St. Paul, Minn.

FROM THE RABBI'S DESK

Last week I attended our Rabbinical Assembly Convention. During the session, Dr. Louis Finkelstein, Chancellor of the Jewish Theological Seminary, addressed the congregation. This address was one of the high points of the convention. I think it will help to change the direction of the Conservative Rabbinate. Dr. Finkelstein pleaded with us to once more devote ourselves to the Torah.

I have been thinking about what he said for the past few days and I have come to the following decision. I will henceforth set aside a definite time for Torah study. From now on, I will be unavailable to anyone on Wednesday mornings from 9 until noon. Except that a matter arise involving life and death—and I mean this literally—I will not answer the phone or discuss any item with any individual during this period. I will be at the Library or at my study in the Synagogue.

During this period, I will devote myself to the study of the Talmud. I will not do anything but study Hebrew literature in the original. I feel that if we are to continue the Torah Tradition in Jewish life, those of us who are in a position of leadership must demonstrate by act and deed our allegiance to this principle. We are a Torah people or we are nothing.

If you wish to reach me on Wednesday morning, merely leave a message with our secretary in the synagogue and I will be happy to phone you at noon. I am sure you will understand my conviction about this matter, and I hope that in time individuals and small groups within our congregation will organize to do nothing else but study the Torah for a set period of time during each week. This time must never vary and must yield to absolutely nothing.

Shalom...

Rabbi BERNARD S. RASKAS.

UJA SUBSIDY TO PARTIES NEEDS TO BE RECONSIDERED

● Editor, JEWISH POST:

In the editorial "A False Exposure" in your issue of July 15, you write "a certain U.S. anti-Zionist publication which hides a penchant for dishonest reporting behind its anti-Zionist skirts, comes forward with the astounding expose that some $2.25 million of United Jewish Appeal funds are allocated annually to Zionist parties."

It would be only fair to point out to your readers that the report in question did not originate with any American organization, but was published originally by the YIDDISH ZEITUNG, Israel's only Yiddish newspaper. The editor of this paper, Mr. Zanin, wrote on March 22 of this year: "From the American drive (UJA) the parties received the following sums, respectively:

Mizrachi and Labor Mizrachi—$50,000 annually. General Zionists and Progressives—$750,000. Agudath Israel and Labor Agudath Israel—$450,000. Herut (Belgion's Party, Revisionist)—$350,000."

To me, it seems very significant that no word of this news item, which is of considerable interest to American Jews, appeared in the Zionist-oriented press in this country, which makes such a point of playing up developments in Israel. The "U.S. anti-Zionist publication," to which you refer deserves credit, it seems to me, for having made this information available to those who have a right to know it, and everyone who has ever contributed to UJA has that right. The reproach of "dishonest reporting" could more properly be made against those publications which had the facts, and preferred to suppress them as long as they could.

Your own editorial concedes that certain Israeli political parties accept subsidies for their work in Israel from the UJA in return for their agreement not to conduct separate fund-raising drives in the United States. Your editorial also suggests the possibility that the matter should Like all movements, U. S. Zionism too needs an opposition movement.

But this opposition must be based on certain restraints, and of course, loyalty to truth and accuracy.

That is why we consider it unfortunate that the anti-Zionists have not enlisted on their side publications which might present their viewpoint with dignity and effectiveness.

In the current issue of The JEWISH NEWSLETTER, the following question is asked under a heading: "A Sequel: The NATIONAL JEWISH POST":

"Why are news items like this kept from the American press except in the columns of The JEWISH NEWSLETTER?"

This was in reply to our editorial in our issue of July 15 excoriating The JEWISH NEWSLETTER for the false innuendoes in its piece, reprinted from an Israeli newspaper, disclosing that some $2,225,000 in United Jewish Appeal funds are annually allocated to U. S. Zionist organizations for their constructive work in Israel.

The fact is that The JEWISH NEWSLETTER is not the only publication to print this so-called "expose."

A publication called The NATIONAL JEWISH POST reported the details, together with the figures as the amounts then stood, in its issue of Dec. 29, 1952, and in a number of other editions over the years.

"The allocations for 1951," The POST

It may take a little time for the import to seep through, but if there is anything that epitomizes in one single act, the new independence of the Jew it is the offer of the Habimah Theatre of Israel for the performance of "The Merchant of Venice."

If we've always seen little use in protesting against this play, which is more or less of a classic in the English language, we've also recognized that there are times, especially during the height of Father Coughlin's attacks on Jews or during the heyday of Hitlerism, when the production of the play might have led to serious consequences.

But today is not 20 years ago, and today the Jew has a new spirit, even if he doesn't recognize it because he isn't able to shuffle off his old attitudes and fears.

But this coup of the Habimah Theatre in its offer to the Stratford, Ontario,

The news that Israel has permitted Arabs to withdraw some $6 million in accounts which were frozen at the time these Arabs fled Israel indicates the kinds of actions the Israelis must take if peace is to be restored to that part of the world.

There was a time in world affairs when Israeli armies could have invaded the neighboring countries and forced their acceptance of the demands of the conqueror. In some parts of the world that is the practice even today.

But Israel, unless she is provoked, be studied seriously with a view an Israeli paper reported that to either paring down the sub-Israeli political parties received subsidies or ending them altogether.

Apparently, then, even you fact was honestly reported by the "U.S. anti-Zionist publication" to which your editorial referred. You, yourself, admit that the facts of the subsidy are true. A high UJA official has recently confirmed that the six Israeli parties cited in the YIDDISH ZEITUNG are actually receiving such subsidies, and have been for many years. Under the circumstances, your charge of "dishonest reporting" would seem to be unjustified and misleading.

If, as you write, this is "nothing more or less than a traditional arrangement made for the benefit of fund-raising in the U.S.," then I would suggest that a change in our fund-raising set-up is long overdue.

To sum it up: It is a fact that in this issue,

KEEP IT STRAIGHT

news item read, "will be similar to those for this year, $1.1 million for the General Zionists and $1 million for the Mizrahi. The allocations were made contingent on continuance of Jewish Agency income at the 1950 level or higher. The Agency indicated that if its income falls, the allocations will be cut proportionately down to a minimum of $750,000 for each Zionist organization."

In a recent issue the same publication charged the U. S. Reform movement with deliberate failure to publicize its recently completed deed for land in Jerusalem for its Hebrew Union College branch. The JEWISH NEWSLETTER said Reform feared it would alienate U.S. Reform Jews. This was ridiculous on the surface, just as are most of the other nasty charges in the same publication about Jews.

The Reform movement has been proud to proclaim its belief and faith in Israel.

Just for the record again, however, the issue of The NATIONAL JEWISH POST of Feb. 26, 1954, carried the large headline: HEBREW UNION COLLEGE PLANNING BRANCH IN JERUSALEM—DR. GLUECK.

It's something of a pity that the anti-Zionist group could not enlist journalistic supporters with more integrity and with a sense of balance. There is something to be said for the anti-Zionist position, and a logical presentation of its case by a journal of responsibility, despite the admitted difficulty involved, would be fortunate.

BADGE OF HONOR

Shakespearean group to come to Israel to present Shakespeare's anti-Semitic play, will free the Jewish spirit, and Jews will look on Shylock as they look on the feudal system or any other vestige of the Dark Ages.

The time will come when to be a Jew will be like wearing a badge of honor.

It's a pity that those today who cringe at the name Jew and therefore go into all the hardly explainable aberrations that cause divisions in Jewish life won't live to see this day.

This offer from the Habimah Theatre then is an historic demarcation which will be noted by the discerning historians as the beginning of the shift from the time when the Jew was despised and often despised himself, to the time when the Jew became a proud bearer of a great tradition, and was so recognized by the world about him.

THE FIRST STEP

seems determined to live peacefully with her neighbors.

This policy then imposes on the Israelis the necessity for making every concession to the Arabs consistent with her sovereignty in order to bring closer the day when peace will be established.

The freeing of these blocked accounts is only a first step.

There must be many more, and as soon as possible, in order to convince the more intelligent of the Arab governments of Israel's sincere desire to explore every avenue towards peace.

POST Pleases Florida Reader

● Editor, JEWISH POST:

There is no greater fascination that holds me more spellbound than reading The JEWISH POST. I seem to drift with your writers in their adventures with significant realization. Their magnificent portrayals can well be commended. Never before have I had such an allured medium of relaxation via reading.

FREEDOM OF THE PRESS STORY ON EGYPTIAN CULT DRAWS FIRE FROM RABBI

Editor, JEWISH POST:

I would like to call your attention to an article that appeared in the issue of July 15, "Egyptian Cult Seen Aiding Judaism in Days of Moses."

First, the subject of the article is of a very specialized nature, one that only scholars in the field would be able to deal with. Yet, your correspondent writes a long article on it based on an interview with a director of photography who openly admits ignorance of the entire field of study involved!

Second, the point of view expressed is so biased (in any other paper, I would call it antisemitic) that the opposite point of view certainly deserves at least mention in the same article.

Third, can you imagine what kind of a shock-like impact such an article is bound to have on an adolescent reader heretofore proud of his Judaism? After all, what have we Jews, few and weak as we are, to be proud about, save the faith of our patriarchs, the acceptance of the Torah by our ancestors at Mount Sinai, and our stiff-necked adherence to the Torah throughout the ages?

The point of view expressed in the article is not only not new, it is nearly standard. Every self-respecting Egyptologist takes it for granted that the religion of the Jews originated in the palaces of the pharaohs. The only English and German scholars who disagree with this did not get rid of their almost innate prejudices either; they simply shifted the blame for originating Judaism to Babylon, or Tyre.

Alone in his opposition to so much erudition, albeit bringing far better and more convincing proof than his opponents are able to muster, stands Immanuel Velikovsky ("Ages in Chaos," Vol. I, Doubleday, 1952). If we are to be guided by his chronology, Abraham becomes a contemporary of the 11th dynasty; Joseph would be the regent who ended feudalism and strengthened the central government under the 12th; the first king of the 13th "knew not Joseph" and enslaved the Israelites, whose exodus spelled disaster for Egypt, brought about the end of the Middle Kingdom, soon to be followed by the dark ages of the Hyksos-Amu-Amalekite oppression.

Only hundreds of years later, with Saul's defeat of Amalek, did the New Kingdom arise in Egypt. It was here, under the famous 18th dynasty, that Israel and Egypt influenced each other greatly. Queen Hatshepsut ("Queen of Sheba") visited King Solomon in Jerusalem, and even erected a copy of his Temple in Deir el Bahari, which makes our famous "heretic," Pharaoh Amenhotep IV (Akhnaton), not a contemporary of Moses, but one of Ben Hadad in Syria, Ahab in Samaria, and Jehoshaphat in Jerusalem!

Velikovsky even identifies letters found at Tell-el-Amarna as having been written by these monarchs to the Egyptian pharaoh.

Rabbis Should Learn More

Editor, JEWISH POST:

More and more rabbis with whom I am acquainted are expressing their desire for a position requiring no more than about 20 per cent of their time. They do not insist that they must have so much free time for Jewish studies or research; they just maintain that they do not wish to become involved overly with their congregations' problems or programs. In short, they refuse to take steps to fulfill their responsibilities — steps for which they have been specially trained (in many cases at the expense of the Jewish community).

Apparently, these rabbis propose to wait for just those responsibilities for which they may confidently expect perquisites.

That this seems to be an accurate and fair conclusion I derive from Dr. Finkelstein's earnest plea at the most recent RAA convention for a minimum of two hours' study daily. Other clues are the patient smiles on the faces of most congregants when discussing their rabbis' learning and the vast number of rabbis who have been instrumental in reducing the educational standards of their congregations' schools.

Names and places are available, but best left unexpressed.

With more and more specialists doing the Jewish centers' important work, the rabbis have

To summarize: Velikovsky may be right or wrong, but I beg of you: more scholarship and less sensationalism in a responsible paper like yours!

CASABLANCA MAN'S LETTER GETS AMERICAN'S SUPPORT

Editor, JEWISH POST:

I read the letter of Mr. Isaac Elmaleh, member of the executive of the Casablanca Jewish community in your July 15 issue with great interest.

In view of the seething cauldron situation which now confronts the Jews in Morocco and of all those who live in Casablanca, it was inspiring to know that Hapoel Hamizrachi has been very instrumental, in Elmaleh's own words, in helping Moroccan Jews to migrate to Israel. Mr. Elmaleh deserves the praise of the entire Jewish world in exercising his position of leadership of the Casablanca Jewish community to encourage and help Jews to go on religious allyah.

There is unfortunately a great deal in the complaints of Mr. Elmaleh on the failure of the Jewish Agency authorities in Israel to provide the full measure of religious facilities which are needed for the absorption of more time to devote themselves to Jewish studies and the Jewish education of their communities. None the less, they still maintain their active search for jobs which require no more than about 20 per cent of their time.

Possibly, they could be excused for this shameful desertion of duty and opportunity if they devoted themselves to sermon preparation and delivery. But, as you have indicated, rabbis do not manage to say anything worthwhile weekly, whereas most newspaper editorials are pertinent and interesting daily. (JP, May 27, '55.)

these new immigrants who are almost 90 per cent religious. Largely as a result of intervention of Hapoel Hamizrachi leadership in Israel in the past few months has there been any recognition by Israel authorities of changes which must be urgently made in order to satisfy the rights and demands of the religious North African immigrants. Pressure from Hapoel Hamizrachi has compelled the recent agreement of the Jewish Agency to settle a boat load of immigrants in a Hapoel Hamizrachi settlement, despite original plans to put them in a Mapai settlement.

A special top level committee has been appointed by the Jewish Agency to create a new policy which will recognize the right of every Jew to choose the settlement in which he prefers to live and to find financial ways and means to make more religious settlements available. There is undoubtedly a need for religious leaders to call this situation to the attention of the Israel government and the Jewish Agency and to insist that in all cases a religious immigrant be helped to find his haven of refuge in Israel in a religious settlement and in a religious environment.

Sincerely yours,
RABBI ISAAC B. ROSE
National Executive Director
Hapoel Hamizrachi of America

NAMES IN THE NEWS

HERE'S A COMMUTER WHO COMMUTES
IN FULLEST SENSE OF THE WORD

The spiritual director of Temple Beth Am, Bayonne, N. J., may break a record for commuting to work this fall. Rabbi Morris M. Tosk will commute between Bayonne and Cincinnati each week end—by plane. This long distance commuting was made necessary when the Jewish Institute of Religion, whose classes in New York Rabbi Tosk had been attending, and Hebrew Union college merged. The rabbi wants to complete his courses in Cincinnati. He came to the Bayonne Reform congregation a year ago, and the members were loath to have him leave. So Dr. Edward Shapiro, president of the congregation, made arrangements with the college and the Union of American Hebrew Congregations. The upshot: Rabbi Tosk will attend classes in Cincinnati Mondays through Thursdays. On Thursday afternoon he will fly back to Bayonne in time for Friday night Sabbath services. He'll be at the temple on Saturdays and also on Sunday for Sunday school. Then he'll fly back to Cincinnati. While the temple will pay his salary, the school will assume the cost of commuting by plane.

Last week, it was announced that Princesses Beatrix and Irene were to have a Jewish tutor in classical studies during the coming school year (JP, July 29, '55).

NEW MAGAZINE 'WISDOM' TO MAKE DEBUT FINALLY

NEW YORK (JP)—A new national monthly magazine, WISDOM, backed by Jewish leaders, will make its belated appearance this fall according to an advertisement in the Aug. 2 NEW YORK TIMES.

The publication, originally slated to debut in December, 1953, will be edited and published by Leon Gutterman. It will be sold only by subscription.

Gutterman, best known to the Jewish community as author of a Hollywood column which is syndicated nationally by the Jewish Telegraphic Agency (JTA) has been working on the project for seven years (JP, July 31, '53).

The magazine is to be non-political, non-sectarian, and non-controversial, although, originally it was to have represented current information concerning American Jewry.

Late in 1951, publication of a similar magazine was announced by Gutterman. Rabbi Max Nussbaum had said 'Henry Luce, publisher of TIME and LIFE magazines, was to be one of the magazine's financial backers and was to provide printing facilities. Luce is listed in the NEW YORK TIMES advertisement as one of a group of distinguished people to whom WISDOM owes "great debt . . . for their counsel, their encouragement, their inspiration."

WISDOM magazine will be printed by Pacific Press in Los Angeles, which prints the West Coast editions of TIME, LIFE and NEWSWEEK.

KASTNER CASE APPEAL SET FOR LATTER PART OF AUGUST

TEL AVIV (JP)—Owing to the enormous amount of material in the Dr. Israel Kastner case, Israel's state prosecutor general, Dr. Haim Cohen, will not appeal the decision of Jerusalem's District Judge Dr. Benjamin Halevi until "a few days before August 22," the legal time limit for the submission.

The prosecutor's office would not reveal any details on the appeal, but it did say it was still studying the material in the decision.

Meanwhile, Dr. Kastner has had a new attack to deal with. The anti-Zionist Satmar Rebbe Yoel Teitelbaum, who came from New York to Jerusalem to help the Naturel Karta against "the heretic, Zionist state," claims that he was not permitted to leave Nazi-occupied Hungary with "the train of the 600 privileged" who went to Switzerland until he paid the equivalent of $600,000 to Dr. Kastner.

Dr. Kastner has categorically denied the accusation, claiming that "the Satmar Rebbe reached the ghetto of Cluj with the help of a Nazi officer, whom he, the rabbi, paid about $200,000. Later, when the Nazi disappeared, and there was the danger that the rabbi and his family would be taken, together with other Jews, to the furnaces of Oswiecim, Dr. Joseph Fisher, Dr. Kastner's brother-in-law and chairman of the Judenrat of Cluj, telephoned Dr. Kastner and asked him to include the rabbi and his family in the "list of the privileged."

Despite the fact that the rabbi had combatted Zionism in Hungary and had supported the Hungarian Christian parties during elections, Dr. Kastner says he did not hesitate. The rabbi, his wife, and seven relatives were brought to Budapest and taken by train to Switzerland.

Furthermore, says Dr. Kastner, when the rabbi asked Dr. Fisher: "How can I express my gratitude for this noble act?" Dr. Fisher, who had learned that his old mother was killed by the Germans, simply replied: "Please pray for my dear, good mother." In other words, says Dr. Kastner, the rabbi's payment for his life was not $600,000, but the recitation of some Psalms.
